

RESEARCH THEMES

Medical Sciences

Researches focus on develop understanding of the physiological processes and disease progression in the human body through experimentation.

Clinical Sciences

Researches include disease progression, risk factors, diagnosis and management, and decision-making.

Professional Development

Research associated with medical education, job development, personal development, safety, quality improvement, information technology, the use of technology, and workplace policy planning.

Health Promotion and Wellness

Researches concentrate on innovative ideas in disease prevention, personal growth and awareness, and overall community health.

Hajj and Umrah

Researches involving mass gatherings, infectious disease prevention and control, disaster response planning and preparedness.

Ethics and Culture

Researches related to the application of ethics and patient centered medical care.

