Course Catalog Description

Communication Skills (735103-74) is an English for Specific Purposes (ESP) course which runs in the second semester of every year beginning in February. The course is offered in 16 weeks with a 02-hour-per-week teaching plan. The textbook used is a professional careers curriculum provided by Express Publishing, consisting of only one textbook: Career Paths, Information Technology. In order to be enrolled in this course, students have to complete the pre-required EGP course (English Language I, 735101-74).

The course Communication Skills (735103-74) is offered to students enrolled in the second semester in the Department of Information Sciences. This course is directed to students who are going to pursue their studies in Information Sciences. The course provides students with the basic jargon/ language register, and with opportunities to practice all the four language skills in a meaningful, subject-specific, context.

Performance Objectives

By the end of the course, the students are expected to be able to:

- 1- recognize a large amount of IT-based vocabulary, define the meanings in English, recall and use them in similar contexts.
- 2- demonstrate adequate comprehension of IT-related texts on a variety of topics with specialist and non-specialist vocabulary by answering comprehension questions.
- 3- show adequate understanding of authentic conversations about IT-related issues by answering comprehension questions.
- 4- formulate guided conversations around IT-related topics while engaging in a range of speaking tasks, including discussions, making requests, suggesting technical solutions, giving instructions, etc.
- 5- compose limited texts incorporating IT-specific concepts, based on multi-genre structures, such as filling out forms, writing memos, reports, letters, summaries, notes, recommendations, and brief comparisons.
